Call reserve for 2027: $450 million

To: Board of directors, meeting of 21 January 2027. From: Troy Stein, director of investment risk. Date: 15 January 2027.

The call reserve for 2027 is $450 million. Under section 5.1 of the liquidity policy I certify it, with the reserve account's qualifying assets of $161.0 million at 31 December 2026; the shortfall of $289.0 million is to be transferred from the endowment pool within ten business days of the meeting.

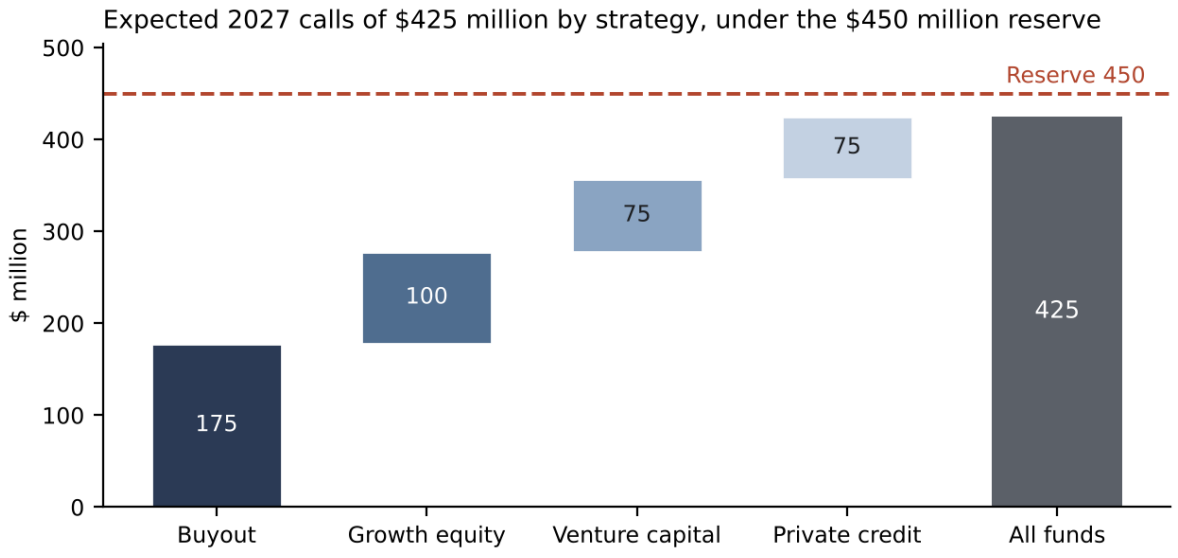

We expect the funds committed before 1 January to call $425 million in 2027: buyout $175 million, growth equity $100 million, venture capital $75 million and private credit $75 million (to the nearest $25 million). Most of it is the 2026 programme in its second year. Twelve of its fourteen funds called less than 8 per cent of commitment in 2026, fees and a first investment, as 36 of our 172 earlier funds did in their first year; those funds then called more than twice the share of commitment the others called in their second year. One schedule fitted over every fund, the usual pacing model, puts that second year low in each of the 12 vintages we can test, and would set the reserve at $350 million.

The reserve account held $161.0 million of qualifying assets at 31 December, $88.6 million of them Treasury bills maturing in 2027. The bills bought on 31 December for the 2027 ladder settle on 4 January and count from then; the agency discount notes the custodian reports with its bills, the 2028 note and the prime fund do not qualify (section 3.1 and Schedule 1).

Treasury bills maturing in 2027, face value, $ million

January to March	April to June	July to September	October to December	Total
32.0	15.0	25.0	18.0	90.0

Source: custodian's positions report for account 6011-2207 at 31 December 2026 and its 2026 settled activity.

Expected calls to the nearest $25 million on the commitments made before 1 January 2027, fees and expenses included and before any distribution set against a call; euro funds at 1.1326, the custodian's reference rate for 31 December 2026 (sections 2.2 to 2.5). Fund detail and the schedules: call_reserve_2027.xlsx.